Tried and Sentenced: Selected Poems

Tried and Sentenced: Selected Poems Philip Casey Contemporary Irish Poetry.

"Things that please me in poetry are precision, compassion and images that surpass the common run of language; also that the poet must have an ear for language as a musician has an ear for music. The work of Philip Casey, especially The Year of the Knife, possesses all of these in abundance." –Michael Hartnett

"Before he was known to readers as a world class fictionist, Philip Casey gave us poems. On the evidence of Dialogue in Fading Light, he remains always and ever a poet of great powers. The wonder and longing, gratitude and grace that inform this work make us grateful for Casey's many gifts." –Thomas Lynch

"If readers need a reminder of what language can do, how it can be rescued from the spin-doctors and made new and enthralling, they need look no further than this superb collection." –Joseph O'Connor

"The splendour of Philip Casey's work is that it is rigorous and hard; and somehow also at the same time bright and kind. It's this unique mixture that sets him apart." –Sebastian Barry

Meditating on love and pain, Frida Kahlo and Mies van der Rohe, lost love and steadfast friendship, Tried and Sentenced Selected Poems draws on acclaimed collections from Raven Arts Press and New Island Books.
